The Mysterious Card-board Box

The doorbell rang twice that rainy mourning, and we all looked up on the sound. Mother rose to answered the door, and when she opens it, she saw only a seeled, cardboard Box. It was small enough for her to carry to her arms, so she broughth it inside and places it on the dinning room table, At first, we hesitated to open it because it was neither wrapped nor marked. it wasnt adressed to us neither. We didn't knew what to do. Father decides to tell us naught to touch the box, so he had put it on top of the refridgerator so noone could reach it. We went about our way after that. We went to school, came home; and had soon forgotten all about it. Days passed, then weeks, then years. Now, all grown--up, We still don"t know nothing that was in the box. We've moved out of the house: started our own famillies. It remained a secret that has haunted me for so long, until, one rainy mourning, my doorbell rings twice.
